

New Website Goes Live

Monday, 05 March 2007

Last Updated Friday, 21 September 2007

After several weeks of being down to a limited service, the new Physical Health Screens website is finally complete. The site gives more information regarding our services. Keep coming back as we add more content and new features.

The new site allows existing and potential clients access to far more content than the old site. The Services page lists all of the current PHS services. Each link on that page opens full details on that specific service.

We have also added a new Frequently Asked Questions area to the site to allow clients to benefit from information already provided to other clients. This will range from specific answers to questions about the PHS services to general questions relating to health and well-being.